Why join an association?

Being a member of a professional or trade association is an important way businesses can make sense of the legislative environment. Whether the group represents concerns specific to your industry (or profession) or takes a broader focus, the investment of joining an association is one worth considering.

One of the clearest benefits of association membership is advocacy – strength in numbers. By representing the business and professionals in a given industry or trade, associations are able to approach government at all three levels with a strong, united voice. The insights and involvement of association members is a valuable resource and research tool in the development of sound public policy. An association is truly a window on ones' industry that exists nowhere else. It's amazing to see the diversity of personalities, talent and ideas—that come together to make up an association.

Business Networking Opportunities - We host 10 dinner meetings (September to June) featuring guest speakers, it's a great way to rub elbows with other member businesses and discuss what's happening in our industry...
